The definition of backdrop means the setting or location, or the mural scene behind the set of a play that sets the imaginary location for the scene.

An example of backdrop is a mural of mountains in the back of a stage.

A curtain hung at the back of a stage, often painted to represent some scene.

An example from the video lesson

As discussed in the video lesson sets can be made according to the requirement. For example in the movie "line of the desert" the main character has been shown in a strong and dominated way. The dresses, background and the overall background has been made in a way to establish his dictatorial stature.
